

Code of Conduct

The Rossland Public Library is a community space for all. Everyone is welcome here and has the right to enjoy a library environment that is respectful, courteous, and safe.

To that end anyone who comes to the library agrees to:

- Be respectful of the people around me
- Acknowledge that we are all different, with different tastes and opinions. This is a good thing.
- Be respectful of library property
- Be responsible for my belongings, my children and others in my care, and my well-being while at the library.
- Leave my pets outside. This, of course, does not apply to guide dogs who are not pets but working dogs.
- Follow the policies of the Rossland Public Library.
- Take responsibility for my actions should I choose not to follow this Code of Conduct. Consequences may include being asked to leave the library.

We are all responsible for keeping our library welcoming to all.
